HALL OF GOVERNMENT

OUR SCHOOL

As our school grows in importance and capability to serve during these war years, so it grows physically, and is increasingly better able to offer its students improvements and innovations on the campus.

The year 1943 has seen the addition of lovely Lisner Auditorium to the George Washington University. Situated on the corner of 21st and H Streets, that noble white marble edifice is a striking token of the generosity of the late Abram Lisner, who made possible its construction.

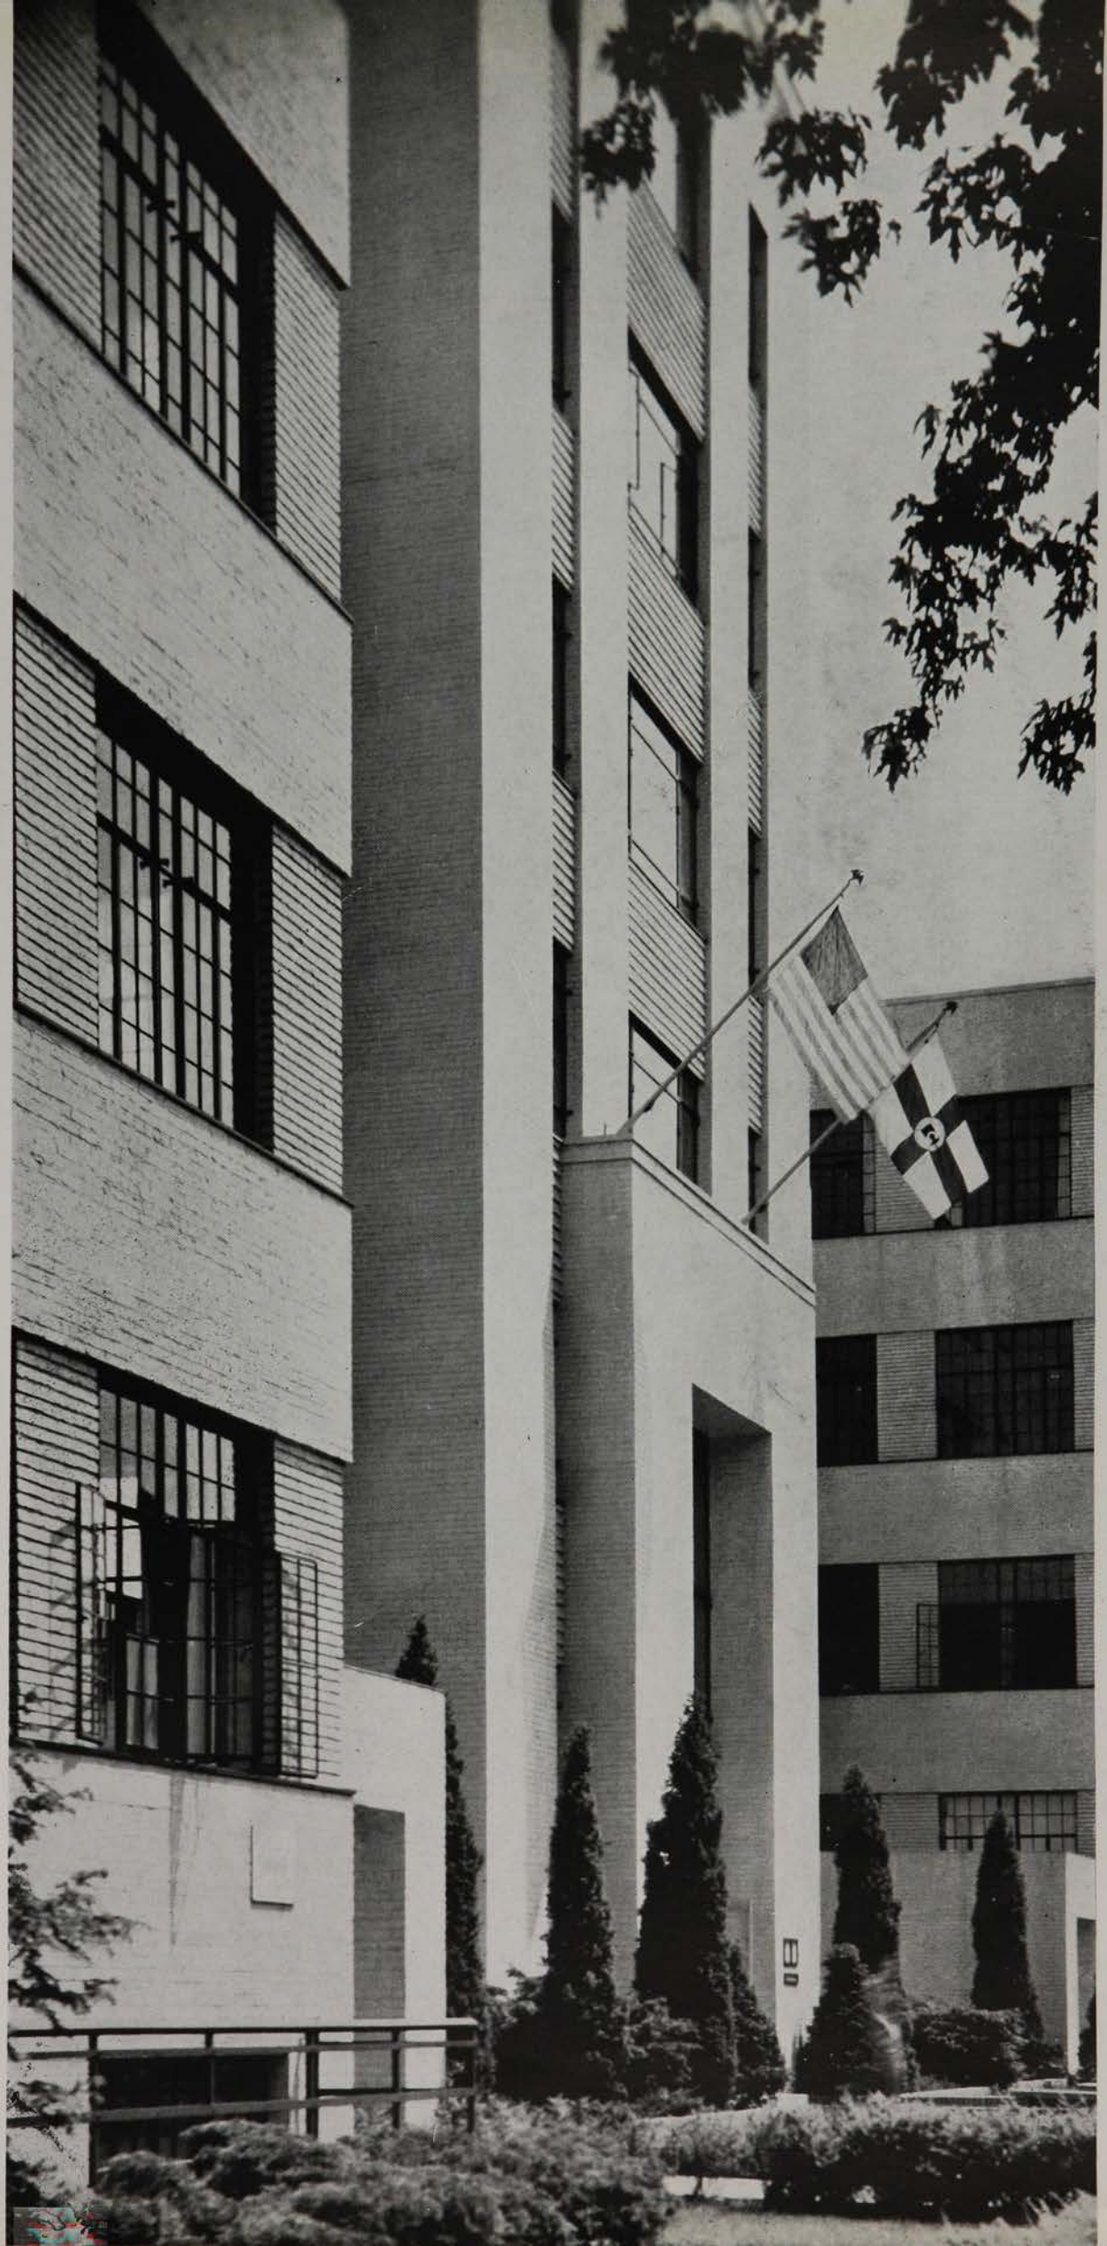

The auditorium was christened with the holding of Winter Convocation there on February 22, 1943. At last George Washington graduates have had their degrees conferred upon them on the platform of their own auditorium! The sheer beauty of the hall and the joy of possession permeated the whole ceremony and made it one of especial and lasting significance, fitting to that ostentious occasion.

The University has made arrangements to offer the accommodations of another residence hall to the part-time women students. The new dormitory contributes to the solution of a most urgent problem of war-time Washington—the acute housing shortage. Now George Washington's women night school students will be able to be accommodated much more adequately and conveniently as the new hall supplements the facilities offered by Strong Hall on our campus.

The School of Art has been improved and enlarged as a result of the arrangement with the Corcoran Art School whereby our students attend classes at the Corcoran Art Gallery. The faculty members are members of the staffs of both schools. This cooperative measure has worked very well to the mutual benefit of both organizations.

The removal of the Art School from the old building on G Street has made possible the utilization of that building by the School of Engineering for their expanding program. Where embryo artists once sketched and painted, now future engineers learn drafting and mechanical drawing.

It seems symbolic of current trends that as the practical arts emerge into a position of tremendous importance in this time of war, the pursuit of the fine arts, while never discontinued or even discouraged, retires temporarily to the background to prepare all the while diligently for intelligent, efficient planning of the post-war world. Slide rules now hold sway where once the pallette reigned, but our George Washington art students have moved into a position where they have materially increased their training facilities and advantages. At George Washington, the studies of the fine arts and of the practical arts go forward together, both in stride with the war-time tempo.

George Washington University, as all educational institutions, equips young men and women to recover from war and to live wisely and happily in peace time. Situated in the Nation's Capital, it has always been able to make a unique contribution, to train Government workers in night schools to do their jobs better and to increase their skills.

At present, George Washington University is doing more than this, for it is offering defense training courses which have already prepared many men and women to do specific war jobs, and is now preparing considerably more.

Besides all this, G. W.'s sons are fighting the war on the front lines, making an immense and vital contribution that those at home can strive to support, but that they can hardly hope to equal.

In all branches of the armed service, erstwhile professors may be found alongside former students. From deans to instructors, members of the faculties have taken their places in the uniformed ranks. With considerably depleted staffs, those professors remaining at the University have indeed proven their ability to carry on under the most exacting circumstances. The scope of courses offered to war-time students and the efficiency of teaching methods have both been enlarged in the face of the shortage of man power and the stress of the accelerated program.

Senior Class History

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

The war undeniably has required modifications in our schools of arts and sciences, but the academic tradition shall not be allowed to die. Many liberal arts students who were to graduate with this class have interrupted their education to enter the armed services. The faculty likewise has lost many, with the result that a less extensive curriculum has been made necessary. Nevertheless, the realization of the importance of academic study has not been lost, and these graduating arts students undoubtedly will make valuable use of this education in their post-war careers.

The science schools have risen to a position of great and immediate importance. A supply of trained scientists is vital to our country's war effort, and George Washington has done its part well with accelerated program and great exertions on the part of the faculty to instruct larger classes with depleted teaching staffs. As a result, the University is contributing as a part of its graduating class a considerable number of trained men and women who are to take their places immediately in essential war positions.

SCHOOL OF LAW

Possibly even more than in the other branches of the University, the Law School has made drastic changes in its program to adjust to war conditions. Students now, by studying summer and winter in an accelerated program, may enter after only two years of pre-law and complete the entire course in four years. Law School enrollment, not having preferred status in the Selective Service, has necessarily suffered, but the addition of special war courses has kept it surprisingly high. Standards continue to be excellent, and the school is ranked with the best in the nation.

The course of world events in the immediate present, perhaps emphasizes the importance of professions other than the law, but its absolute essentiality in an ordered civilization is unquestioned. We may count on these graduating lawyers to contribute largely to a successful peace.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

Our Engineering School, highly rated nationally, continues to carry out its important task of producing technically trained personnel, the need for which is being felt everywhere throughout war industry. Defense courses have been added, enrollment has increased, and although many of the faculty have been called to war jobs, the training offered continues to be extensive and of high quality. Students, recognizing the importance of their education to the welfare of the country, have applied themselves seriously to the task at hand and are graduating with excellent capabilities. The class of engineers of 1943 is to take an important place in the United Nations' war machine.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The Medical School has risen admirably to the tremendous and important task of turning out in increasing numbers, well-qualified physicians to serve our armed forces and the civilian population. Most of the students in the Medical School hold reserve commissions in the Army or Navy, and many of the graduating seniors are serving their internships in Army and Navy hospitals.

We are proud that our George Washington medical students are responding so capably to the greater burdens and increasing responsibility that they find themselves confronted with as a result of the accelerated program. Summer vacations have been unknown to these new doctors during their last two years of school. They have had to work even harder than preceding classes, and withall, many of their number received their degrees with distinction.

The women who graduate in this class have for the first time in the military history the opportunity of service in the armed forces with reserve commissions. Those not in uniform, however, still serve and in an equally vital capacity. For as with the women graduates of the other schools and colleges, these doctors are well qualified to take their places in civilian life, and thus to serve along with their colleagues in uniform.

Myers, Hankin, Stewart, Baker, Bomba.

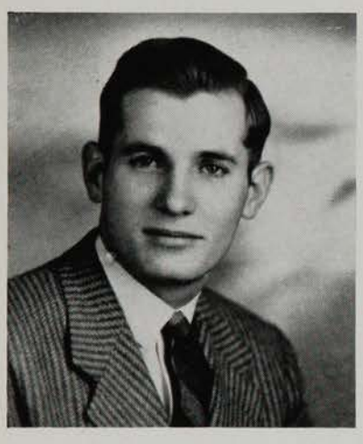

Considerable hope was held last fall for an improved football season over the disastrous one of the previous year. George Washington had a new coach and promising although young and inexperienced material.

Johnny Baker, who starred at quarterback for Colonial teams not so long ago, and who since has coached very successfully in high school football, was taking over the reins from Bill Reinhart after serving one year as his assistant.

Baker found himself handicapped by the lack of any fast, really first class backs, and consequently his attempts at developing a tricky, effective offense went for naught. The result was a fair team with considerable defensive ability, but, as usual, lacking in scoring punch.

Throughout the season, the play of the ends was one of the brightest features. Czekaj and Romasco held the regular jobs here with McNary, Misiewicz, and Vleck as reliable subs. First-string tackles were Koniszewski and Hurley, the two biggest men on the squad, but Butkas, Rosa, and Hapanowicz also saw much action, particularly after Hurley was injured. Hall and Seeno did most of the work at guard, with Continetti and Harjes as relief; and duties at center were divided between Seibert and Gustafson. After Seibert's injury early in the season, "Gussie" took over the bulk of the work and did a bang-up job.

The regular backfield was Weber at right half, Labukas at quarter, Bernot and Seno alternating at fullback, and Jimmy Graham in the tailback spot. Graham did the passing and kicking throughout the year and also much of the running. Bernot and Seno both did well in their job of cracking the line, while Weber, the ball-carrier in the most effective offensive play developed, scored several times and piled up a lot of yardage on reverses. Toward the season's close, Rausch saw some service, particularly in catching passes, while all season long, Pollock and Paidakovitch gave valuable relief.

The schedule was too tough to expect more than an even break, and with some bad luck, not even that was attained. Two wins over weak teams opened the season, with Western Maryland going down 20-0, and Richmond, 27-0. The latter game was G. W.'s first Southern Conference football victory. The following week, an outplayed Citadel eleven staved off threat after threat by the Buff and won a lucky victory by the misleading score of 14-2. The Furman contest following that with the Citadel was one of the muddiest on record, with neither team being able to move; but a single break, a long run by Proctor, gave the Purple Hurricanes six points and a victory.

From this time on, G. W. could look forward to no respite. Completely out of their class against William and Mary, they were slaughtered 61-0. Coming back the next week to play a spirited first half against a classy Kentucky team, the Colonials were finally overpowered 27-6.

The Clemson game, next, was the high spot of the year. Superb defensive play, particularly by the ends, finally bore fruit when Weber intercepted a late pass and scored to give G. W. a 7-0 triumph.

Wake Forest turned out to be just too smooth for the Buff and Blue and won easily, 19-0. The final game against Georgetown was a great disappointment. Both teams were butter-fingered and made many mistakes, but the Colonials outdid the Hoyas in this respect, and lost a 20-0 decision. This last defeat gave G. W. a season record of 3 won and 6 lost, only slightly better than the record of 1942.

BASKETBALL

Southern Conference Champions of 1943—This title tells the story of the George Washington University 1942-43 basketball season. After years of consistently fine teams which have been denied national recognition because of having no particular goal to shoot for in the form of league competition, the Colonials have at last demonstrated conclusively that their brand of basketball ranks with the best in the country. Strangely enough, this climax has occurred in a year when the Buff has lacked any individual star and has played under the guidance of a coach untried in varsity competition.

Arthur "Otts" Zahn, not so long ago himself starred for the Colonials under the direction of that basketball wizard, Bill Reinhart. Last year, when Reinhart left the University to accept a commission in the Navy, "Otts," previously coach of consistently successful freshman teams, was chosen to take his place.

It was an unenviable task. Reinhart had compiled a great record, and although Zahn was thoroughly familiar with the former's system of basketball, the material with which he had to work was inexperienced and lacking in even one player of proven scoring ability. The single asset apparently was quantity. Taking full advantage of this, Zahn developed a system which emphasized team play with frequent substitutions. He proved to be a master at it. Throughout most of the season, eight men made up the "first team," with almost any possible combination of five on the floor at a given time. These men were Rausch, Myers, Wagman, Koniszewski, Gustafson, Gallagher, Groetzinger, and McNary. Playing less frequently but very ably were Jackson, Reichwein, Fitzgerald, Sokol, and Matera.

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE CHAMPS

A surprising fact about this year's team is that any one of the players seemed capable of starring on a given occasion, and as a result, season scoring was rather evenly distributed. Jim Rausch was probably the most consistent of the group. Developing into a classy ball handler and a fine shot in his second year of varsity play, Jimmy was chosen along with "Big John" Koniszewski for All-District honors. Joe Gallagher as team captain and playmaker, had a less sensational task but did an excellent job. When the other boys were missing, the set shots of Myers and Wagman often carried the team, and on the other hand, there were nights when the close-in shots of Gustafson, Groetzinger, and Koniszewski contributed most of the scoring. For valuable defensive play, particularly in recovering the ball off the backboard, McNary was always at hand. All the boys had both their good and their bad nights, however, and inconsistency seemed to rule.

The season record was 17 won and 6 lost. It began very well, to the surprise of many, with victories over Fort Meade and Oklahoma A. and M., the latter being very highly rated. An inexperienced G. W. team, however, now ran into some very fast competition. After gallantly staying with Norfolk Naval Training Station until well into the second half, the superior class of the sailors told and the game became a runaway. The Quantico Marines, also with a very fine team, were next, and the Buff here lost a tough game in the final minutes, mostly through lack of experience. The first Georgetown game ended up very similarly to the one with Norfolk, and the Colonials' record was now two wins and three losses.

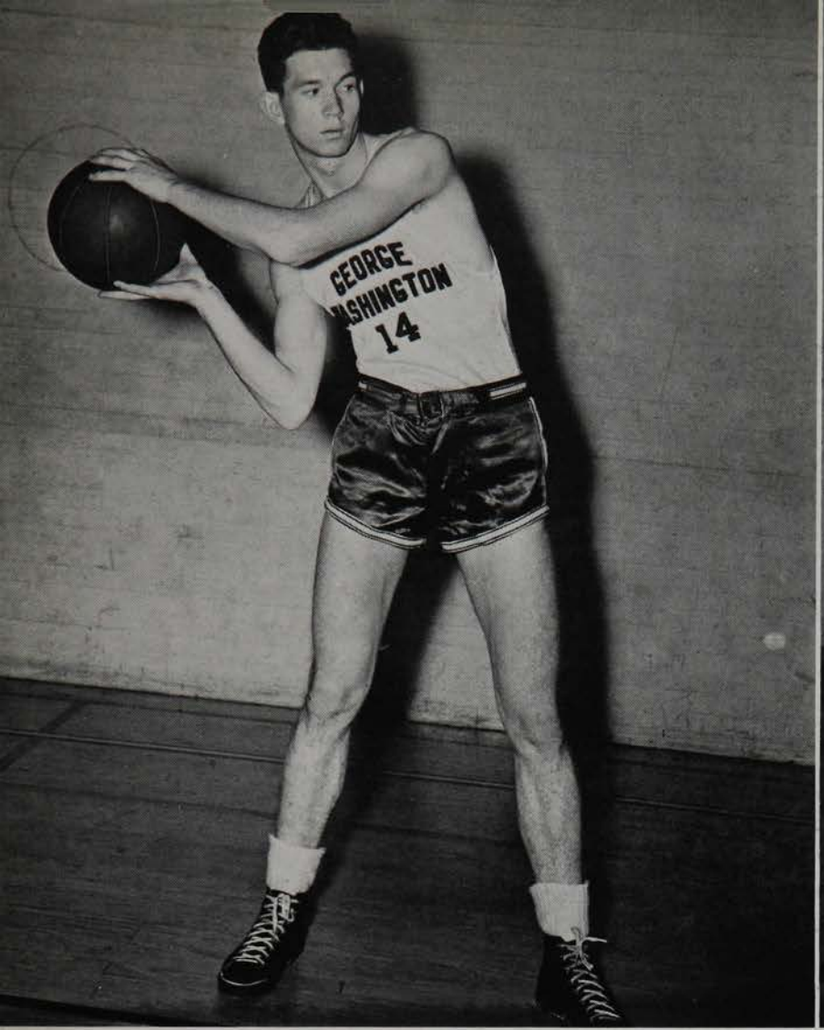

Unexplainably, the Buff men were then tripped by the lowly regarded William and Mary team, but came back to win three Southern Conference tilts.

The second Duke game was an overtime thriller. But the Blue Devils' superior height prevailed, and the Colonials lost their fifth game.

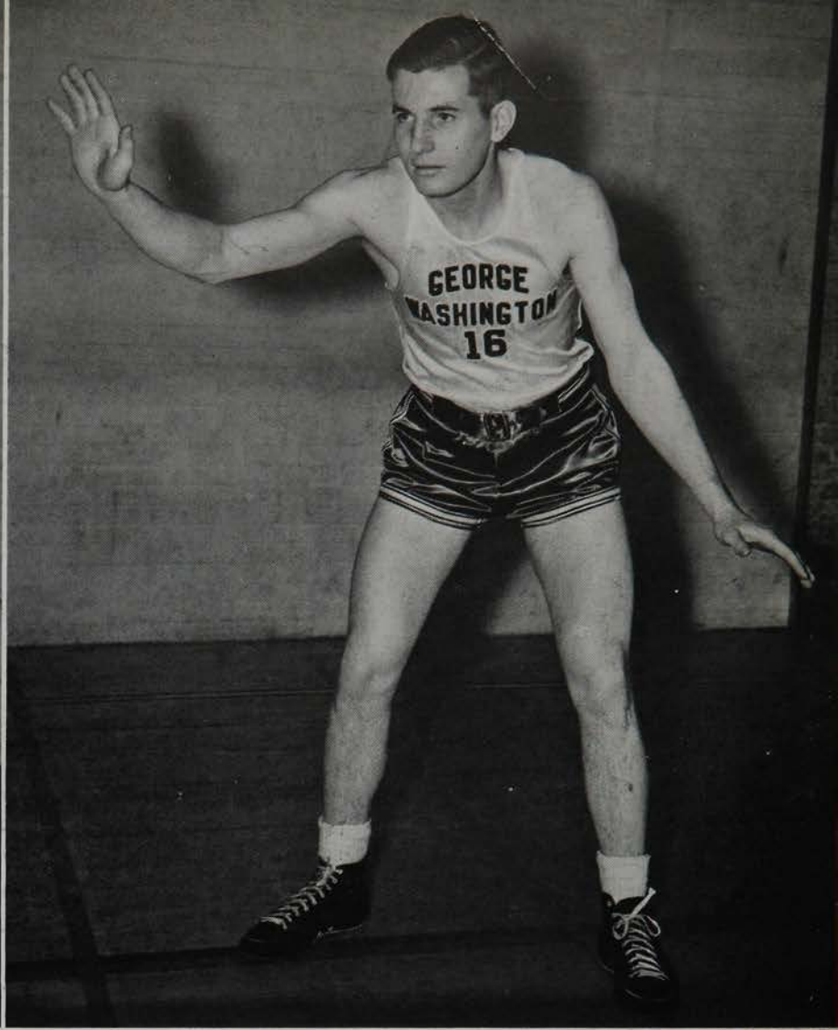

A second win over V. M. I. was followed by the final Georgetown game. Once again, as in 1941, a bid to a national tournament was at stake. And once again G. W. collapsed. Perhaps the officiating was too strict; perhaps Georgetown does have a jinx on Colonial teams. In any case, it was no contest, and G. W. went down in defeat.

Then the Colonials recovered and went to work on the Conference tournament. Avenging themselves on William and Mary in the opener, they narrowly escaped elimination in the semi-finals by forcing a one-man Davidson team into overtime with a gallant last-minute rally. Koniszewski distinguished himself particularly in this game.

The final with Duke, of course is history. Rausch was shooting unerringly. Gustafson, Koniszewski, and McNary controlled the ball continually off the backboards. Gallagher and Groetzinger played brilliantly all over the floor. Everyone finally got "hot" at the same time, and Duke just never had a chance against this courageous bunch of kids who were probably playing G. W.'s last game in any major sport for the duration of the war.

INTRAMURAL AND INTERFRATERNITY SPORTS

Slibos, what form.

Intramural football.

In accordance with the national physical fitness campaign sponsored by the armed forces, the University inaugurated this year an extensive program of intramural sports, designed to replace spectator sports in part by activities in which all men might participate. Under the direction of Arthur Endres, a very successful and complete schedule was carried out.

Cups and other awards were given in three major sports and 14 minor. After a slow beginning, the students began to take an active interest, and the climax was reached at the All-University Track Meet, in which about 50 men participated.

Competition throughout the year was both individual and team. Team competition was usually in two divisions, inter-fraternity and independent, with the winners of the two groups playing each other for the all-university championship.

Following is a list of sports and the champions in each:

• • • WOMEN'S

The numerous sports activities offered to women of the university this year are fulfilling a real need and desire on the part of the students. They feel more than ever the demands which are going to be made upon their physical selves, and welcome the numerous opportunities offered to them in sports activities. These women will be prepared with endurance for any wartime challenge.

The instructors of the Physical Education Department, with the aid of the Women's Athletic Association and the Women's Intramural Board, have made women's sports a real part of student life at the University.

Once again in the fall, soccer and hockey had a large turnout, with tennis and bicycling running a close second. Because of transportation problems, the girls hiked to the sports fields lacking the erstwhile comfort of bus transportation. Somehow this raised their spirits, for all-out enthusiasm ensued whenever game competition took place. This was especially noticed in the exciting match between the George Washington Honorary Varsity Hockey team and the Washington Field Hockey Association team. And the enthusiasm lingered unabatingly for the Sports Day at Hood College a little later.

RUTH ATWELL
Director

When the cold north wind of winter drove everyone indoors, the girls turned to basketball and badminton. The former swelled with popularity. Out of the ranks of the basketballers there developed the Odd-Even teams made up of Sophomores-Seniors and Freshmen-Juniors respectively. The match between these resulted in a joyous victory for the Even team. Then a varsity team was chosen which daringly challenged the alumnae and managed to beat them in a close game. The season was topped off by games with Maryland and American Universities.

The badminton tourneys were played between classes and combined with Women's Intramural matches for a final fling in competition.

Rifle also played a definite part this year under the guidance of Helen Taylor who had to conform to special governmental instructions in order to obtain the necessary ammunition.

An activity which has grown tremendously in popularity among the women students is Modern Dance. Its purpose has been to develop interest in a field of artistic expression which is fast becoming an important part of women's activities in many colleges. The two groups, Orchesis and Junior Dance Group produced a highly successful demonstration in the spring recital.

In the warm spring days troops of girls wended their way to the tennis courts, riding stables, bicycling stands, and swimming pools. Under the sunny skies in the shadow of the Washington monument the G. W. U. gals rode and played to their hearts' content, reluctantly ceasing their sports to return to classes. In spite of the lure of the out-of-doors, swimming gave evidence of being the most popular spring sport. The final activity consisted of two meets, one for advance swimmers, sponsored by the W. A. A., and the other an Intramural meet for average swimmers. They both were splashing successes!

All activities this year were geared to wartime objectives. In every class instructors emphasized the development of endurance. Even the traditional hygiene lectures were transformed into conditioning exercise classes and health conferences, where physical fitness held sway. The University women have dedicated themselves to physical preparedness.

Archery is a popular spring sport.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

THE DANCE

In the fall, there is hockey on the Ellipse.

Badminton, soccer, and basketball all attract many students in the physical education classes.

CHERRY TREE BEAUTY CONTEST

The 1943 Cherry Tree Beauty Contest was held on March 19 during the intermission of the Varsity Ball at the Shoreham Hotel. The thirteen candidates were judged by the members of the faculty of the University School of Art, with Bill Herson, local radio personality, officiating as Master of Ceremonies. The Cherry Tree proudly presents 1943's Beauty Queen and her court.

"Fairest of the Fair" was the cause of much speculation around campus for some time before the fateful night of March 19. The fair in this case were thirteen potential beauty queens who represented each sorority and three other University organizations in addition. The contestants were: Anne Berry, Alpha Delta Pi; Jean Orem, Chi Omega; Margaret James, Delta Zeta; Kathryn Thompson, Kappa Delta; Adrienne Warner, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Cecelia Smith, Phi Mu; Edythe Silverberg, Phi Sigma Sigma; Mary Hopkins, Zeta Tau Alpha; Norene Burnette, Colonial Campus Club; Jane Gass, Mortar and Pestle, and Barbara Baldridge, Handbook Staff. Everyone was all agog with curiosity and personal preferences, as to who would soon be chosen Cherry Tree Beauty Queen for the year.

Finally the long-awaited hour arrived—the intermission of the Varsity Ball. To the music of Wally Hughes' Orchestra, each contestant walked the length of the Shoreham Hotel's New Ballroom to the platform of the judges. This year's judges were Richard Lahey, principle of the Corcoran School of Art, and three members of his staff, Eugene Weisz, Peggy Bacon, and Hans Warneke. Bill Herson from the local WRC radio station led the selection of the winners as Master of Ceremonies, and as one of the judges.

The beauty and grace of the girls, as they passed in softly swishing gowns between the dancers lined up on each side of the ballroom, aroused much enthusiasm expressed by clapping and by murmured Oh's and Ah's from all. The atmosphere was one of expectancy as they all assembled on the stage to receive their awards.

The cup for first place went to Adrienne Warner, representing Kappa Kappa Gamma; Bettye Donaldson of Sigma Kappa took second place, and Barbara Baldridge from the Handbook Staff placed third. Applause from the audience filled the room as the suspense was at last ended by the presentation of awards to George Washington University's winning beauties of 1943.

AARON LAYNE
President

The students' governing body, the Student Council, saw this year a terrific turnover of members. At every meeting one could feel the draft down one's neck.

The elected officers were Kim Vought, president; Aaron Layne, vice-president; Roy Baker, comptroller; Charlotte Patterson, secretary; Paul McClenon, activities director; Pat Orr, social chairman; Fred Kingman, publicity director; Ellis Hall, advocate; Sarah Jane Williams, program director; and Bob Howard, freshman director.

Paul McClenon was first to leave to serve Uncle Sam. He was replaced by Bob Howard, freshman director, the freshman no longer being so fresh; and when Bob was called, a newcomer to the Council, Palmer "Snuffy" Smith, was appointed by President Layne to replace him. How did Layne get into the president's chair? Well, Kim Vought was called by the Marines and resigned; Aaron, being vice-president, took over.

Another Layne appointment was Martie Diven to the post of Freshman Director.

These newcomers did a swell job of mounting their horses in the middle of the stream.

Social Chairman Orr must be mentioned especially for the excellent job she did in running the 1942-43 social calendar which included All-U-Prom, Victory Dance, and Varsity Ball. Pat was also responsible for the successful drive for Smokes for Yanks put on by the Camel cigarette people.

The persons appointed to run the special functions of the Council must also be touted—Jimmy Mack and Mac Arnold who ran the Co-op Book Store the first semester, and Harold Bobys who took over the second. Herz Safer and Dean Nichols who put on the 1942-43 Co-op Book sale—Helen Chandler who ran the Soap Drive for Russian War Relief—Margery Gessford who directed the Cherry Blossom Drive which collected more money than ever before—and last but certainly not least, Bill Stell and Vivianne Hooppaw who put on five swell Buff 'n Blues, the "dry" night clubs sponsored by the Student Council.

A year so full could only be climaxed by the wow of a political election for the new officers which ended on a high note the functions of the 1942-43 Student Council.

"To ban or not to ban—Politics."

Let's hold a meeting on Friday for the whole staff. . . . Mary, did you write that letter to Benson yet? . . . There's not a photographer in town that has any film. . . . Anyone know anyone who likes to type? . . . Well, anyone know anyone who is willing to type? . . . But why can't I put in nicknames? . . . Where is the Cue and Curtain copy? . . . Hey, Anna! . . . Someone must have the key to the office. . . . Let's put this one on the IOU page. . . . "George Washington students—Don't use this here table for Nothing." . . . What's this, a time clock? Gee, it works! . . . Hey, Anna! . . . Someone must have that Cue and Curtain copy. . . . Mr. Benson is in town . . . Charlie has pneumonia AGAIN! . . . Let's go to dinner. . . . No, we have to wait until Ring gets back. . . . Do we have any Glee Club pix yet? . . . WHERE is Paul Taylor. . . . Ye Gods, not the White Tower again. . . . Why don't they heat this mortuary? . . . Who's that man in the next room? . . . Hey, Anna! . . . My father won't like it if you don't put my middle initial "C" in my name. . . . Is someone looking for Cue and Curtain copy? . . . This stuff all needs proofreading, Virginia. . . . Say, this will work up into a wow of a montage. . . . Let's put him in the Rogues' Gallery. . . . Why do we have four prints of this guy? . . . I know some dirt on the Hatchet Convention that they'll never print—can't we put it in somewhere? . . . If one more person asks me when this miserable book is coming out, I'll beat his brains out. . . . Oh, Benson will take care of that stuff. . . . But Kingman, look what you did to the Chi O's. . . . Ye Gods, its freezing in here. . . . Someone call the Hatchet and see if they know. . . . Why didn't we get an Shut up, you, I yelled first. . . . I'm awfully sorry, but I extra print of her? . . . Hey, Anna! . . . Hey, ANNA!! . . . can't possibly work NEXT Sunday. . . . Has the President had his picture taken yet? . . . What, sit here during a blackout with all those strange men back there? . . . Let's go to Parchey's. . . . Hey, Em, now you can copy these three. . . . Afraid of the dark!—I never heard of such a thing, P. J. . . . It's a matter of policy, and after all, I AM the editor. . . . Oh, no, none of this montage stuff. . . Those are swell clouds. . . . But it must be up there on the top of the safe. . . . Look what I found under that desk—Cue and Curtain copy! . . . It's 12:30—is that too late to call the PΔΦ House? . . . Why can't you work next Sunday? . . . Hey, Anna! . . . All those things are in "Memos to Shinn." . . . File these pictures under "C" for corny. . . . Look who has come to call—the Hatchet peoples. . . . Let's use an old cut of that one. . . . I flatly refuse to eat at that Drug Store. . . . Why, Ann! . . . Anyone got a cigarette? . . . Hurry up, Anna—we'll get campused and Panhel is this week-end. . . . Who ate all those jellybeans? . . . But I think a montage would be lovely. . . . Aw, please, Anna. . . . Oh look, I cut these pictures too short. . . . Where is that damned Student Council envelope? . . . Got a pencil? . . . There must be a picture of Sparks around somewhere. . . . When is the yearbook coming— . . . GET OUTA HERE!!! . . . But they say we can't use any more metal. . . . I'm hungry. . . . You're always hungry, Ann. . . . That is a honey of a cover. . . . Em, are you positive the "S" comes before the "Z" in that name? . . . This paper cutter just isn't straight. . . . Let's work on Wednesday night too. . . . Hey, Anna! . . . The Student Council sure isn't happy about that photographer—I guess they think we're delighted about the whole thing. . . . I said captions, not captains. . . . Does anyone recognize this picture? . . . Well, well, so you finally got here with the key. . . . Oh, she's got the measles. . . . Let's you go out and get us all cokes. . . . You can stay with me tonight, Mary. . . . That's going to ruin the whole page. . . . You'll have to ask Charlie about that when he comes. . . . Oh, do you think they will be mad? . . . Who cares anyhow? . . . Is it too late to have my picture taken for the Senior Section? . . . First name first on those, Libba. . . . Sure, just make a note of it under Special Remarks. . . . These half-pages give me a headache. . . . Look what Charlie did to Mina and Joe! . . . Mary, what ever are you doing with your shoes off? . . . We're finishing up tonight. . . . Hey, Anna! . . . Hey, Anna!

The Hatchet gang works rather unobtrusively during each week digging up news and covering assignments for the weekly publication. Come Sunday, it settles down in the Hatchet Office for some twelve hours of hard work and horse play.

Typewriters clack as student reporters get out their stories. "We don't say 'amble down to the Dean's office for an application' ", insists the news editor and a story goes back for rewriting.

Second in the news assembly line is the copy editor who hunts for mistakes in stories and worries over proper headlines. The society department, meanwhile, is busy calling up Greek groups while covering the lighter side of campus life. Sports men, deep in intramural team scores, take time off to discuss the last baseball game or tennis match, depending upon the season. Editorials are receiving their final polish.

The background is filled with ringing phones and the chattering of students who always drop in to leave news or publicity or to just "visit".

Suddenly someone starts to sing. The staff cheerfully drops its work and turns into a glee club, usually off key but always powerful. The Hatchet pace is broken periodically by semi-musical outbursts.

Eventually, however, the makeup man is ready to plan the arrangement of stories on the page. It is midnight, and most of the staff have finished and gone. A few editors remain to settle last minute details.

The night's work is over as copy for Tuesday's Hatchet is neatly rolled up and sent to the printers. On Monday the material is set in type at a downtown press. By the time the Hatchet comes out on Tuesday, the weekly round of newsgathering has already begun again, to be followed by another Sunday in an atmosphere that few one-time Hatcheteers ever forget.

MINA BROWN
Co-Editor

This year the staff decided that Handbooks could be interesting, and we tried to make ours so by including lots of clever cartoons, sports comments, pictures, and most important of all—Georgie our cover girl. Our first number was the Freshman Issue, the cover of which is included on this page. It was intended to be a guide to the Freshmen and a ready reference for the upperclassmen. During the summer an issue honoring our men and women in the services will be published in cooperation with the "Alumni Review." We are hoping that next year the "Handbook" will have even more issues and that Georgie will live through the years as an integral part of our University.

In spite of various handicaps with which Cue and Curtain has had to contend, they have carried on admirably. Although they have not had actual use of the Auditorium itself, Cue and Curtain has been able to use many of the smaller rooms there—facilities which have helped the organization a great deal. There is now a special poster room with equipment, where students go in their spare time. This new phase of dramatics has helped to publicize the activities of the club, and the members are just beginning to realize the importance of this field. Also, Cue and Curtain has a special wardrobe room, where costumes are kept throughout the year. In the past year, the Speech Department itself has been of great help in putting on the plays. The Stagecraft class has been mainly responsible for the settings; from time to time demonstrations in theatrical make-up have been given in special classes by a member of the faculty; in the Acting Classes students have learned the technique of the stage, and have used their knowledge to good advantage in the performances.

The success of the year was "The Man Who Came to Dinner," directed by Floyd Sparks. It equalled, if not surpassed, the dramatic triumphs in former years by the club. Outstanding in the cast were Verna Gusack, Keith Adamson, Walter Ludwig, Valeska Ruble, Warner Schreiner, James Bowler, Howard Vorder Bruegge and Virginia Nalls. The second play presented was "Heart of the City." This play, verging slightly on the melodrama, was more difficult to carry across, and hence, was not the success "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was. However, Cue and Curtain's high dramatic standards were maintained in the performances of Ann Evans, Harriet Hulfish, Virginia Beavers, Susan McNeese, Cherry Frost, and Dick Bear.

C U R T A I N

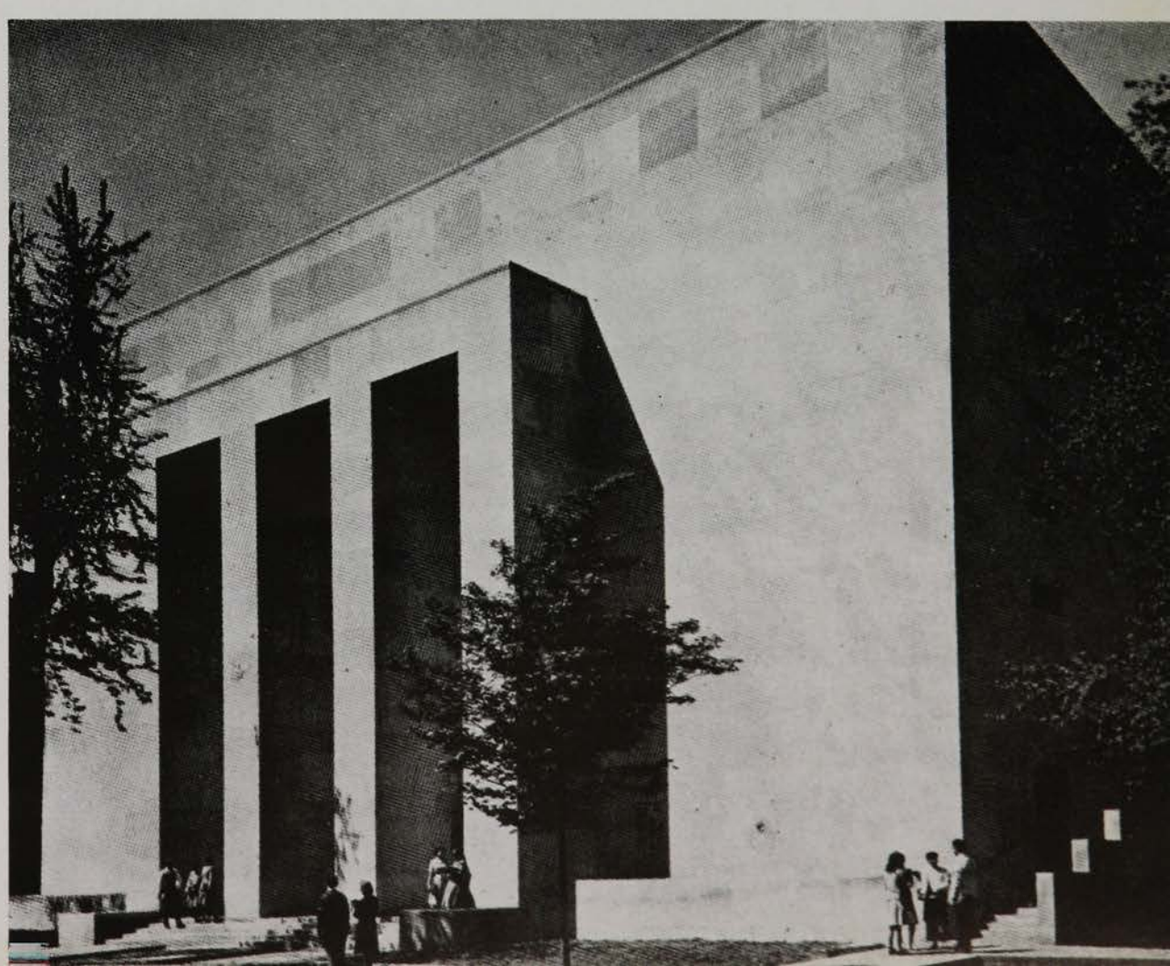

Scenes from "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

The year closed with the traditional banquet where Verna Gusack and Valeska Ruble were awarded prizes for the finest acting in the female major and minor roles, and Walter Ludwig and Keith Adamson for the outstanding male dramatic work. Susan McNeese received an award for her service to the club, and David Grimes, our dependable stage manager, received an award for outstanding technical work.

A word of thanks should be given to Floyd Sparks, "Sparkie" to all the students, for his fine directing, and to Tony Pritchard for his leadership in the club.

In the coming year, the club hopes to have full use of the Auditorium, and so present the plays right at the University. Due to the manpower shortage, we will have to face a serious problem unless new students will come out and try for these plays. With the cooperation of all students in such necessary matters as make-up, acting, props, ticket selling, and painting, as well as acting, we expect to make next year the biggest yet for Cue and Curtain.

*Four years a member of the Glee Club.

The Glee Clubs, under the direction and accompaniment of Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Harmon, had a rather full and a very successful program this year. Their first appearance was at the Calvary Baptist Church, a program for young people. In December, the Clubs sang for the District Bar Association, and for the University Christmas Chapel.

The war affected the Glee Clubs this year, not only in a manpower shortage. The group sang Hawley's Christ Child Cantata for the U.S.O. Club, and in April, gave a half-hour program at the Stage Door Canteen. Both of these unique appearances were enjoyed by audience and the Glee Clubs alike.

Several members and alumni of the clubs sang the Chorale from Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with a combined chorus under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler.

Again the Glee Clubs cooperated with the Religious Council in appearing on the program of the Spring Festival. The Christmas Chapel, which was broadcast, had proved to be such a success that the Chapel Committee asked the Glee Clubs to sing again for the Easter Service.

Throughout the season, the clubs performed many times, both as individuals and as a group. Numerous solo parts were given to various members of the clubs. The Statler, the Mayflower, and the Willard were the scenes of many of the concerts, and the New York Avenue Child's Restaurant was the scene of many a rehearsal.

National Music Week held hours of intensive practice culminating in two performances by the clubs. The first was a Choir Festival, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Highlight of the season was the Annual Concert, attended by a capacity crowd. The well-arranged and beautifully presented program bespoke of the hours of hard work and practicing, and proved that this toil had not been in vain, for the Concert was a crowning success to the already successful season.

The Columbian Women of the George Washington University, a unique organization which draws its membership from the alumnae, the student body, the wives of the members of the faculty, trustees, and officers of the University, and recipients of honorary degrees, will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in the coming year, having organized in 1894.

The various groups from which its roster is drawn constitute a membership with a greater breadth of interest and influence than is usual in college societies. The chief object of the organization is the advancement of opportunities for women by providing for them scholarships in the various departments of the University.

This is accomplished by means of a scholarship fund which was established in 1904 and which has been increased through the years by means of gifts, benefits, investments, and one-half of all dues paid into the society.

The Columbian Women are happy to announce that forty-six new members were enrolled during the past year and they cordially invite all who are eligible to join their ranks.

Support your University and help carry on the laudable work begun nearly fifty years ago by the women of vision who founded this association.

"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting, get understanding." Proverbs 4:7.

Christian Science Organization at the George Washington University, founded in 1931 and composed of students and faculty members interested in Christian Science, is one of the seventy-six such organizations in universities in the United States, England, and Canada. The aim of our group is to aid University students in obtaining a more comprehensive understanding of education and service, and in attaining greater spiritual development through the study and application of this Science in all University activities.

Authorized periodicals on Christian Science as well as the international daily newspaper, "The Christian Science Monitor," are maintained in the University Library by this organization. The annual reception, to which all students and faculty members are invited, was held October 11, 1942, and was addressed by Roscoe Drummond, Chief of the Washington Bureau of "The Christian Science Monitor." A free lecture on Christian Science was given by Judge Frederick C. Hill, C.S.B., of Los Angeles, California, member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, on April 24, 1943.

Still glittering with the brass buttons that adorned her lobby through the year, G Street's dormitory just signed in from a very successful social season. The first regiment fell in for the Reindeer Romp, featured number on the Christmas Dance, held December 12 for officers stationed in or near Washington. The second group was honored at a Valentine Dance on the night of February 13. The brass buttons on the WAAC uniform of Lieutenant Kirby were the feature attraction on January 7 when Strong Hall sponsored this officer's informative talk on her organization. More officers, from Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Forces, brightened up the regular Harvest Ball on November 14 and the Spring Formal in April.

Intra-dorm activities included a Hallowe'en Party, a Spring Pet Show on the roof, and a farewell party for departing housemother, Mrs. Lee. Our new housemother, Mrs. Patterson, has won the hearts of all with her cordial friendship and cheery efficiency.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Cherry Tree Staff offers its most hearty thanks . . .

To Peggy Payne and the other members of the Staff of the Publications Office, for their unfailing cooperation and guidance.

To Frank Huseman for his timely aid in helping us with our paste-ups.

To the Hatchet for their support on the publicity front and their genuine interest in the welfare of G.W.U.'s yearbook.

To the Student Council for their repeated offers of assistance when we needed it most, and their dependability in coming through with that assistance every time.

To the Student photographers who helped us out of a jam by their contributions of time and skill.

To Mr. Benson for his patience with our sometimes rattled staff and for his invaluable advice on his two trips here from Nashville.

To The Washington Post for the loan of some of the pix appearing on the sports pages.

To the members of the staff who practically gave up their private lives during the whole course of the development of the book.

To the Benson Printing Company for their excellent workmanship, but even more for their resourcefulness and patience.

To the White Studio for the pictures of the Seniors and members of the organizations.

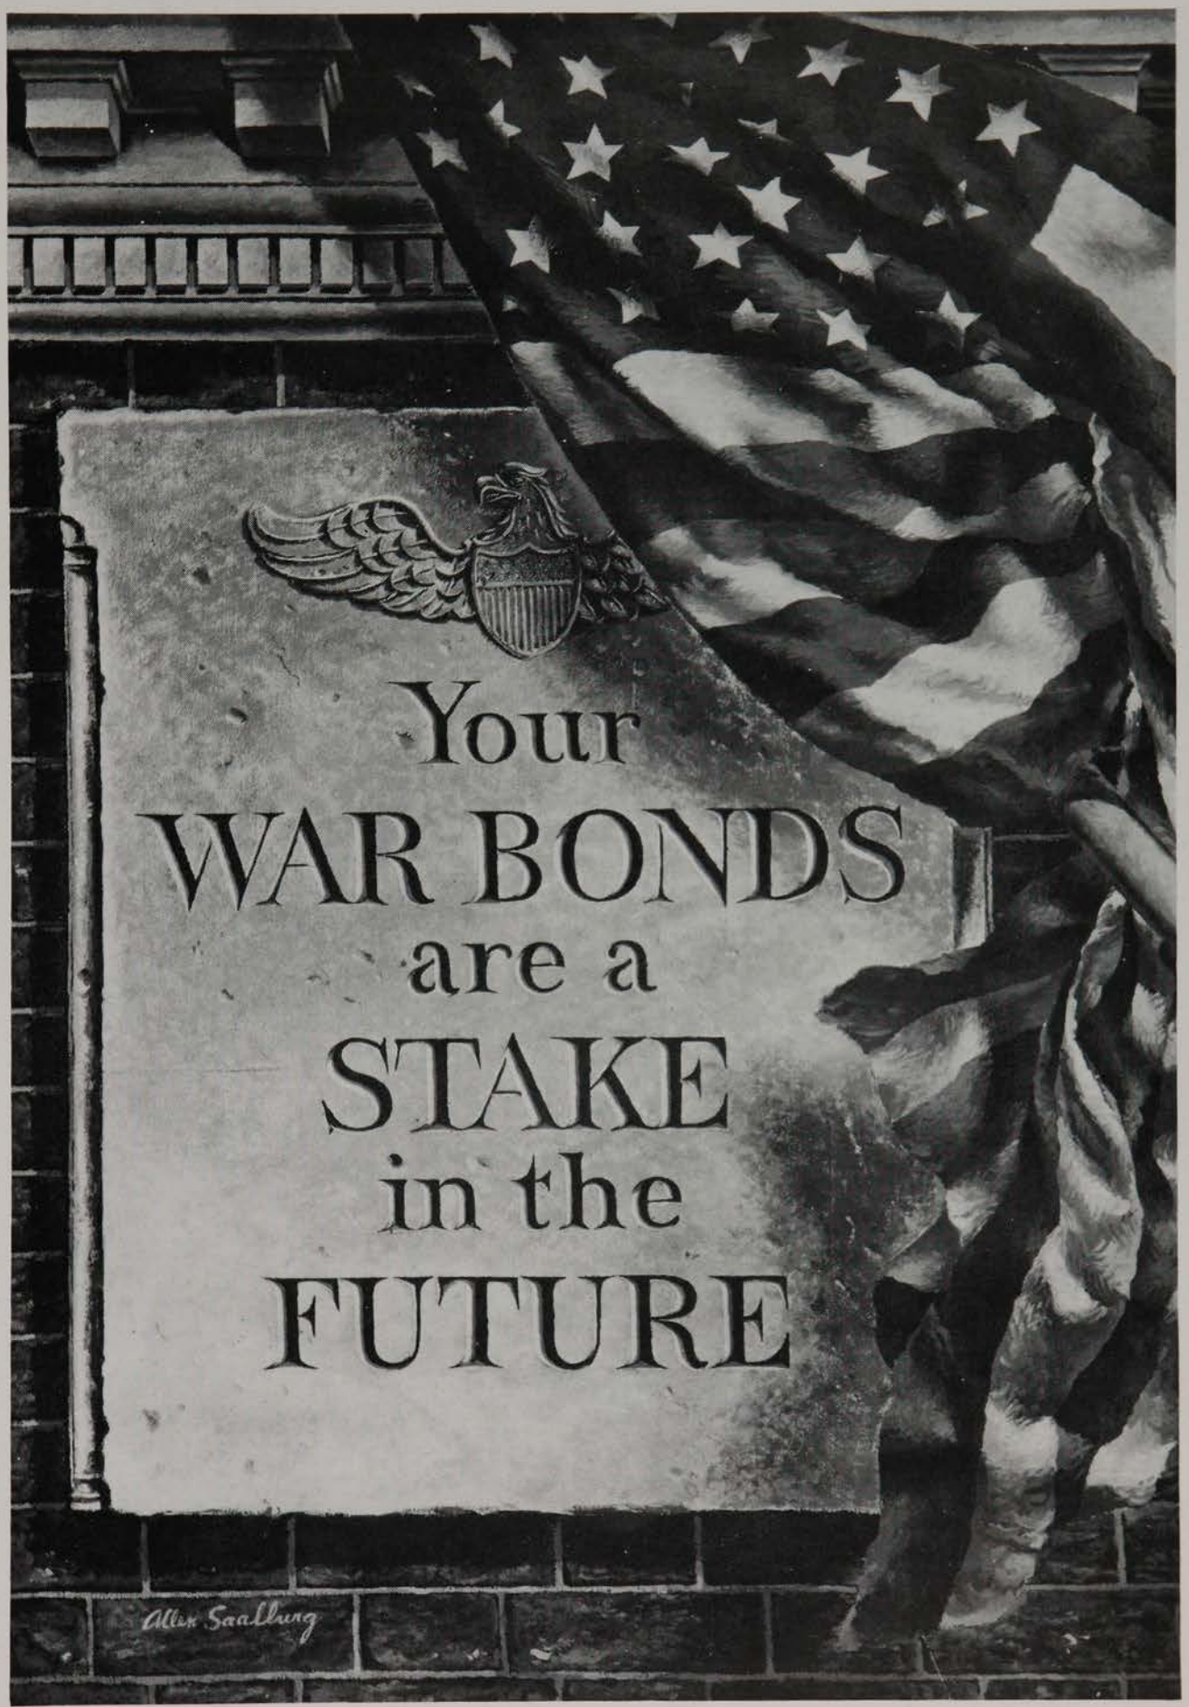

To the Casson Studio for pictures of Seniors in Medicine.

To Edmonston Studio for several of the individual portraits.

And most of all to the student body, for bearing with us as we struggled with the exigencies of wartime restrictions on almost everything that goes to make up a yearbook, and for keeping faith with us when we weren't sure we could make it.

Garfinckel's congratulations to you all, and a cordial invitation to George Washington students to visit the capital's most distinctive store. A number of our shops major in clothes for your campus life, and the lighter moments . . . and gifts for your host of friends. When you're here, remember, delicious luncheons and tea are served in the Greenbrier Garden, a good meeting place.
